THE SUBSTANTIAL PACTS.

e rebel papers all over the country Register included, have published a ment of the financial condition of nation prepared by Mr. Delmar, merly connected with the Treasury partment. That pliant tool of the ocracy undertook to show that as onle we are bankrupt, and we prethe rebel prints give it de publicity, because "the wish is ther to the thought." The New York st in a recent issue, ventilates Mr. lmar and his financial statement

There has never been a political strugwhich has brought before the people prominently the financial condition prospects of the country as that oing on. The benefits of this dission cannot fail to be important in paring the people to take an intellipart in settling the great questions nance which will come before the sources, to obscure and confuse the ives of our financial history for last seven years; but they are utterwin. The substantial facts are fair to every one who cares to be informed, and the absurd misreputations in which some political e up by Mr. Wells three months and more fully by Mr. Edward inson in his Worcesterspeech, have attacked and tested in every posway, and the result has only been nfirm their accuracy, rain partisans interested in imneg the credit of the nation and confidence a statement of the facts sentially different from that of essrs, Wells and Atkinson, have employed Mr. Alexander Delmar to work ployed Mr. Alexander Delmar to work up the Treasury figures into a form which might encourage the enemies of the Union. He has done his worst with them, in a recent letter, to prove the country bankrupt. This letter some of the Democratic papers print and discuss with a jubilee cry, as if the ruin of this nation were the only thing now wanting to complete their happiness and bring on the Democratic golden age.

Readers of the Evening Post do not

Readers of the Evening Post do not need to be informed now of Mr. Delmar's standing as a statistician. He is a mere blunderer with little information and leas capacity. We have been at the trouble at various times to expose the assumptions and misstatements which he has printed as director of the Bureau of Statistics.

The simple fact that his reports as director of the Bureau of Statistics.

The simple fact that his reports as director have been intolerable by Mr. Culloch and by Congress, and that he has been removed from office by legislation in consequence, is genough to show the value of his authority.

It is very unfortunate for those who have contirived this silly attack upon the national credit, that they, have not been able to get the signature to it of a responsible officer of the Treasury, who, like Mr. Atkinson, is known and trusted as a statistician. If the figures of Mr. Delmar wore true, Mr. McCulloch himself, the most open and earnest supporter of the Democratic ticket and platform in the Cabinet, would not refuse to sign them. As matters now stand, it would be sufficient to leave the question as one of ficient to leave the question as one of authority; Mr. Delmar against Messrs suthority; Mr. Delmar against Messrs. Wells and Atkinson.

But on close examination it seems that Mr. Delmar has not ventured really to contradict anything which Mr. Wells has asserted. The nearest approach he makes to it is in his account of the appropriations required by the Treasury for 1868-9. He has made a great effort to mystify this and kindred sublects, but has not been made a great effort to mystify this and kindred subjects, but has not been shrewd enough to do it well; and the result is that he involves himself in such open contradictions as effectually prevent his letter from deceiving any one. For example, he takes the permanent appropriations' for the civil list, the army, and interest, including the necessary current expenses under these heads, which are the same from year to year, amounting in all to $180,469,000; then the unexpended appropriations of previous years, $85,694,447 03; then the new appropriations asked for by all the departments of the government this year, in all $182,183,786 92; and adds them all together, making $398,317,183 95 and this Mr. Delmar sets down as the 'ordinary expenses' for the fiscal year 1868-9.

Now this he does, in defiance of notorious facts. In the first place, a very large part of the unexpended balance, of appropriations was for specific purposes, which have been accomplished by the outlay of less than the amount appropriated. There is no authority to expend, the balance, which 'lapses' to the Treasury. For example, if Congress had appropriated ten millions of dollars, or 'so much thereof as may be from Internal Revenue $69,000,000 from last year; although for several months of the year ending July 1st the rates of taxation were the same they now are. The changes in the Internal Revenine law at the last session will doubtless diminish the yield from taxes; but it is very doubtful whether the falling off will be as great as the excess of revenue above expenditure for the year 1867-8; which, as given by Mr. Delmar, himself, was more than thirty-five million dollars. It is very unlikely to be as ast year; although for several month dollars. It is very unlikely to be as much as this, with the addition of the saving made by the reduction of appropriations this year in the Navy Department alone. In the customs revenue there is no sufficient reason for believing that the year will show any falling off at all.

On the whole, then, the essential facts of the financicl situation, as set forth by Mr. Atkinson, remain unimpeached.
The nation has really reduced its debt, by a considerable sum, every year since the war. The total reduction already effected is not less than one-fourth of the whole amount, including unaudited accounts, due in March, 1885. The revenues show an elasticity which promises that under a wise administration taxation can be steadily reduced hereafter, and all the liabilities of the nation met in perfect good faith. The expenses of the government, under the rigid economy practised by Congress, are rapidly decreasing. With Grant as President, and peaceful reconstruction in the Southern States, there will be a smooth and natural way to the restora tion of specie payments, and of the highest standard of the national credit that patriotism itself can desire.

Wich is the State uv Kentucky.)

Sept. 20 1898.

The glorious news of the Maine election reached the Corners promptly the fourth-day after it occurred. So anxious wuz we to hev the earliest intelligence uv the oysthrow uv the Ablishnists uv the Pine Tree State, that Bascom's mule wuz kept bridled and sadded with Issaker Gavitt's little brother Jethro onto him, at Secessionville, the neerest stashun to us, fer three days and nices. But ez no tranes stop ther onless ther is a barl of whakey to roll orf for Bascom it wuz a long time afore we cood git a paper. That paper wuz finally thrown off to him and he rode into the Corners wavin it over his hed in triumph. It wuz a World, but hed it bin a Triboon it wood hev made no diffrence. Ez the precious child can't reed, all papers is alike to him,

I opened it in favrish eagerness and my sole dilated ez I saw the hed lines.

'How is it?' shreekt Deekin Pogram, Elder Pennibacker and Bascom in a breath.

'See them roosters! Observe them hed lines! We hev carried the State uv coarse!'

'Kor!' shouted the entire assemblage.

'Ror!' shouled the entire assemblage.
'Three' cheers!' sed I, 'for Maine.—
The tidle wave uv Democrisy her commensed movin. Maine has succumbed—let the other States do ez well and Seymore is elected. Three cheers for Maine!'

daine!'
They gave em with a will, and then lemanded the parlikelers.
'I will reed,' sed I. 'Listen:'
'We hev the pleasure uv announcin o our reeders the most glorious victory iver achieved by the Democrisy uv any seta.'

'Ror!' sung they out altogether.
'Maine hez spoken. The Athishnists who expected to carry the State by 3,000 majority at leest, and who hed ased their hopes thereupon, hey bin—'
'Ror!'

'Disspinted, After a hard-fought bat-le in wich money wuz yoosed without tint, they hev—' 'Ror!' 'Ror!' 'CARRIED THE STATE BY ONLY 22,000!'
The vast aujence by this time gathered, didn't cheer at this. On the contarry, there wuz a most ominous silence pervadin uv em, wich I acknollege affected me.

ieoted me.

'Is this reely and trooly a victory?'
askt the Deekin in a husky whisper.
'So the paper sez,' returned I,
'How much did they carry the State
by, last fall?' askt he, bustin into teers.
'Eleven thousand and some odd hun-

'Eleven thousand and some odd hun-dreds,' replied I, wipin my eyes in a vane attempt to restrane the teers wich started unbidden.
'Ef we keep on gainin at the same rate in Ohio, Injeany and Pennsylvany wii it certainly elect Seymore?' askt the blessed old lamb.

'So the World sez !' sed I.

The Grace of the resist of authority to expend, the balance, which 'lapsee' to the Treasury. For example, if Congress had appropriated ten millions of dollars, or 'so much thereof as may be necessary' for the support of a military post on the Indian frontier for the year less's, and one million only had been expended for that purpose, the remaining nine millions are an 'unexpended appropriation.' Mr. Delmar includes all such sums as this, amounting to $55,000,000, among the amounts to be expended this year. The fiction is too weak even to decive himself.

Again, when the Democratic heads of departments asked for $152,000,000, among the amounts in books have and pounds; to consider the decive himself.

Again, when the Democratic heads of departments asked for $152,000,000, among the amounts in the expenses of the current year, just as if Congress had yield; the contracted for year employed the pounds and yet, in the very next sentence, includes the expenses of the current year, just as if Congress had yield; the or year is made out.
